

ABSTRACT

A system for mounting an electronic device in a vehicle interior includes a base member having an aperture configured to receive the electronic device therein, at least one mounting surface provided on the base
5 adjacent the aperture, a mounting structure extending from the electronic device and configured to interface with the mounting surface, and a cover having a clamping portion configured to secure the mounting structure between the mounting surface and the cover when the cover is coupled to the base.